

FIJI

INSIDER TIP

On average, Americans allocate 2 weeks when they are looking to jet off to another country for vacation. Then why not consider maximizing your multi-country itinerary by leveraging attractive stopover programs from carriers like Fiji Airways and Air New Zealand? Doing so transforms your layovers into mini vacations (usually in the hub city of the airlines — Nadi and Auckland respectively) which will enable you to elevate the variety of your travel experience.

NEW ZEALAND

CONNECTING THE DOTS

Exploring the region's wonderfully diverse landscapes can be a breeze when booking the right transportation option. Don't be deceived by the map scale when it comes to multi-state travel! In Australia, coast-to-coast journeys require an hours-long flight or a multi-day train trip – which is well worth the excursion. In New Zealand, self-drive options make it a breeze for planning self-paced trips. In Fiji, it's easy to hop island-to-island on local ferries and catamarans.
